

STAT

Ahead of the News

CAPITOL HILL — Former assistant FBI director Louis Nichols is quietly being touted to the White House as new CIA chief if Allen Dulles resigns (NEWSWEEK, Jan. 6). Reason: CIA men believe that only someone with Nichols' standing on Capitol Hill can head off the setting up of a Congressional "watchdog" committee, claim such a group would hamper intelligence operations.